PACE Background Investigations give your agency

- Standardized Procedures
- Standardized Interviews
- Standardized Reports

The Police Applicant Background Investigation is the most important part of the new hire procedure. Applicants can pass physical tests and oral interviews with practice and preparation; however, the background investigation reveals an applicant's true nature.

PACE teaches students a methodology that creates comprehensive and standardized documentation for each applicant. The PACE investigation process allows your hiring team to compare applicants equally and fairly, which helps your agency select the best candidates.

Upon completion of the course, students are given access to the PACE Police Training online, document library which includes all the necessary forms to organize and streamline their background investigations.

The PACE forms will help your agency develop customized documentation for each applicant and provide your hiring team with a thorough assessment of applicants' strengths, weaknesses and character.

Topics Covered:

- Creating a standardized process
- Release forms
- Sources of information
- Investigative and interview techniques
- Financial history analysis
- Online searches
- Necessary reference checks
- Social media examinations
- Producing a clear and concise report

Instructors:

Detectives Andrew Jicha (Ret) and Dave Feyen from the Waukesha Police Department bring more than 50 years of Law Enforcement experience and knowledge to this training. Both trainers have conducted numerous background investigations for Police Officers, Dispatchers and many non-sworn positions. Detective Feyen's additional experience as a Digital Evidence Forensic Examiner focuses on in-depth online investigative searches.
