Online Predator Investigations demand specialized skills that go beyond the standard training provided to most law enforcement officers.

This course is designed to equip officers with comprehensive knowledge and capabilities, guiding them through every step of the investigative process from creating an undercover online persona to presenting evidence in court.

Topics Covered:

- Establishing an undercover online profile
- Identifying online predators
- Communication strategies
- Maintaining undercover identity and controlling situations
- Conducting surveillance
- Risk management during suspect meetings
- Safety during search warrants
- Utilizing computerized evidence
- Documenting undercover actions
- Effective courtroom testimony
- Physical and mental well-being
- Conforming to ICAC standards

Equipment Needed:

- Note taking materials
- Prior to class students need to have an undercover Gmail account set up. This will be the Gmail account you will use to set up your undercover profile and download apps
- While not required, a work cell phone dedicated to undercover investigations with administrative rights to download apps
- If you do not have a dedicated undercover phone, you can create one with an old cell phone reset to factory settings. This phone should be dedicated to undercover work only and never used for personal use
- While an undercover cell phone is not required to attend the class, having one will allow the student to download investigative apps in class

Detective Andrew Jicha (Ret), a 26-year-veteran at the Waukesha Police Department, worked undercover for 15 years specializing in narcotics investigations and online predator cases. Undercover Academy is built on Detective Jicha's extensive experience, designed to maximize efficiency while minimizing risk to undercover officers.
